Bowling Green stuns Missouri

Missouri wide receiver Jay Murchison (bottom) fumbles the ball away after being hit by Bowling Green's Tawan Smith (55) and Adam Lige (47) during a fourth quarter drive. Falcon Jason Woullard (49) recovered the fumble. Murchison's fumble was one of three that the Tigers lost in the second half of the 17-10 Bowling Green victory.

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Once the breaks started going its way, there was no stopping Bowling Green on Saturday.

The Falcons trailed, 10-0 at halftime, but scored 17 unanswered points in a memorable second half and took a 17-10 upset win over Missouri before 35,154 at Faurot Field.

A stifling Falcon defense forced three Tiger turnovers and added a key fourth-down stand in the second half, allowing the offense to break out of a first half funk and come away with one of the biggest wins in school history.

"It's a big win for our program," Blackney said after the Falcons' first-ever win over a Big Eight opponent. "We don't get a lot of respect [coming out of] our conference."

"We worked very hard this week. It was almost like preseason practice. We went back to fundamentals like blocking and tackling, and I think it really paid off."

"But most of all, the kids really responded today."

Respond they did with consecutive touchdowns late in the third quarter that reversed a woeful first half.

Steve Ayers recovered a fumble with 7:15 to go in the third quarter on the Tiger 14-yard line that seemed to turn things around for an offense that was 0-for-5 in Missouri territory in the first two quarters.

Tight end Trevor Stover caught a one-yard score to pull the Falcons to within 10-7. Then it was Eric Starks catching his first career touchdown, a two-yard strike on the next possession, to put Bowling Green up to stay.

The rest was left to the Falcon defense, as they forced two more turnovers to help ice the outcome.

"In the first three halves we've played this year, we've had so many miscues," Blackney said. "The second half we came out and played football like we have the past four years at Bowling Green."

Missouri came out and played just as they have the past four years as well -- ugly. Coach Larry Smith, a '67 Bowling Green graduate, gave all the credit to the school where he began his collegiate football days.

"There's nothing to be ashamed of or embarrassed about on our end," Smith said. "We played our butts off ... but Bowling Green was the better team today."

The centerpiece of this victory was the Falcon defense. Missouri led 10-0 after scoring on the sec-

Jewelry, art, photographs, dolls and leather tribal masks -- these were only a few of the items for sale at the Black Swamp Arts Festival.

The festival consisted of exotic arts and crafts sold from beneath about 30 tents lined up throughout downtown Bowling Green. To most people it would seem like a great business opportunity.

Exhibitors disappointed with weekend festival sales

But this year there seemed to be more than a couple of disappointed dealers.

Zeke and Marty, who refused to give their last names, came from St. Louis to display a variety of different leather tribal masks. The two said their business has been very slow.

"We've been in this business for 25 years, and business is rarely this bad," said Marty. "We should have just stayed home."

Yvonne Hughson, who owned a booth called "Dolls By Yvonne," said business at these types of festivals has been slow all year.

"I think the heat this summer has driven a lot of potential customers away. People just aren't as willing to come out in this type of weather. Although, this weekend is one of the nicer ones," Hughson said.

Ken Becker, who owns his own photo graphics company, said the reason for the lack of sales is most people come to the festival to just look around but not to buy anything.

John Lubinski, a University junior, said he didn't plan to buy anything either.

"I just like coming down here and looking around. Besides, a lot of this stuff is pretty expensive. Most college students probably can't afford to buy anything," said Lubinski.

Hughson, who travels throughout Ohio and the surrounding states, said another reason might be that Bowling Green is a pretty conservative town, and some residents might not find these crafts as interesting as residents of other towns do.

"I usually make more money in places that aren't as conservative, like Philadelphia, and cities on the East Coast," said Hughson.

"On a steady basis, you almost have to do the fairs. Galleries are there, but it is very difficult to be selling in galleries on a steady basis. A lot of artists do both."

'Frasier' success opens Emmys

NBC edges competition with nominations for primetime awards

John Horn
The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. -- NBC's hit comedy "Frasier" won three of the first four honors presented at Sunday's 47th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards.

David Hyde Pierce, who plays the show's wobbly psychiatrist, won best supporting actor in a comedy series. The show also won for comedy series directing and best writing in a comedy series.

"Does this mean that I'll never have to work again or that I'll never work again?" quipped Pierce.

Christine Baranski, the sardonic divorcee on "Cybill," led off the evening with the Emmy for outstanding supporting actress in a comedy series.

NBC headed into the awards with an edge as the leader in nominations and preliminary trophies given in weekend ceremonies.

"ER," NBC's hot hospital drama dominating the Emmys with 23 bids, received five statues in the non-televised creative arts awards Saturday.

NBC had a total of 96 Emmy nominations, followed by CBS with 91 and cable's Home Box Office with 50. ABC had 39 bids, while Fox Broadcasting Co. had 19.

Emmys in 27 major categories were being presented Sunday night at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium in a ceremony telecast live by Fox Broadcasting Co.

Comedy stars Jason Alexander of "Seinfeld" and Cybill Shepherd of "Cybill" were ceremony co-hosts.

NBC won 16 awards in Saturday's preliminary ceremony, followed by CBS with 14. Other network totals included HBO's seven awards and PBS' four.

Acting trophies given Saturday for guest appearances on comedy and drama series went to Paul be seen in more than 80 foreign countries by a estimated overseas audience of more than 500 million, the academy said.

Winfield for CBS' "Picket Fences," Shirley Knight for ABC's "NYPD Blue" and Carl Reiner and Cyndi Lauper for separate episodes of NBC's "Mad About You."

Emmy winners were chosen by Academy of Television Arts & Sciences members through peer-review panels.

Sunday's show was expected to sents the beginning of the ceremony's annual rotation among ABC, NBC, CBS and Fox.

ABC had an exclusive four-year U.S. broadcast deal for the ceremony, but the network agreed to relinquish its hold early after its competitors registered their annoyance with a 1993 Emmy boycott.

Fans should be more supportive

Being 0-2 isn't that bad, some had said before Bowling Green's weekend road trip to Missouri. Many fans had already mentally carved out a Falcon trip to the Las Vegas Bowl assuming an 0-2 start to the season.

After the first half of the Missouri game, it looked as if the skeptics would be correct.

But the second half brought back the bowl-bound Falcons of previous seasons, pulling out a 17-10 victory.

Now with a win over a Big Eight conference team -- c that's Big Eight like the conference where defending national champion Nebraska plays in and Big Eight like which has four top 25 teams in the nation.

So you would think that the Falcons would rumble out of the lockerroom Saturday to a roar from the crowd.

Right? Maybe, a slight yawn will pass over the BG faithful. It is a well-known fact that attendance at home football games hasn't been as good as it could be in recent years.

Despite Bowling Green's recent winning seasons, many seats remain empty at home games. There are many theories that have been rehashed over the past few years about why students aren't showing up to games.

Some argue that students are apathetic and have no pride in the University. Others theorize that students are too accustomed to having a winning team and find games boring in which the Falcons thoroughly thump other Mid-American Conference teams.

Maybe it's Saturday morning cartoons, or sleeping off a hard Friday night, or just lack of interest that keeps students from making the trek across campus to the stadium.

Whatever the theory, the reality is this -- Bowling Green has a team that is a MAC favorite for the Las Vegas Bowl, and a head coach that has taken them there before.

So students who have Saturday afternoon free should take a walk over to Doyt L. Perry Stadium and cheer on the Falcons as they take on their first MAC team of the year.

Besides, students pay for football tickets as part of their general fee whether they're in the stadium on Saturday afternoon or not.

So in this world of dollar stores and bargain shops why would you pay for something and not receive it? What are those 15,000 students who don't show up for BG games thinking when they let the University take $35 out of their pocket but haggle over hamburger prices at the Union.

Cruelty exists as an art

Editor's Note: We don't know if Dan's article is on the arts or on killing people, but we do know that he bought a nuclear warhead with his student loan money, so we just smile, nod and do whatever he says. We suggest you do the same.

Although I spent a fair amount of time in court this weekend (explaining to a judge that, due to the theory of relativity, I was only doing 25 miles per hour, and it was the rest of the world spinning by at 100 miles per hour), I was able to break away for a while to go to the Black Swamp Arts Festival. In particular, I wanted to see Parallax View, not only because they are an excellent band, but because every other person there was given a free pitcher of tequila.

Ha! I'm just joking, of course -- everybody got a free pitcher of tequila! But that is not my point. My point is that I wanted to go downtown and appreciate some art, no matter how many beers I had to drink until it all made sense.

You see, some people are able to look at art stuff and immediately see the intrinsic artistic quality, whereas I still have major problems with a paint-by-numbers kit. Some people may say that I was not exposed to enough art as a child, but I think it was exactly the opposite: too much art.

As a child, it seemed like hardly a week went by without our entire Star Wars-loving, Pixie stick-eating, hyperactive school went to an art museum. A trip to the museum did not teach me that various cultures in various times expressed themselves through their artwork, but that various cultures in various times were really messed up.

Dan S. Gaffney

Let's take pornography, for example. In today's society, a photo of a naked man and/or woman is usually seen as either a.) a disgusting, demeaning symbol of the destructive decline of our society is in, or b.) the cover of National Geographic. About 400 years ago, however, naked was IN! As a kid, I remember seeing hundreds of paintings of groups of naked men and women -- most the size of a Volvo station wagon -- standing around what appears to be a backyard barbecue. The only thing that these paintings taught me was that barbecues aren't as fun today as they were a few hundred years ago. It's either that, or they used to drink heavily beforehand. My point is, though, that this art is useless, unless you really have a craving to see 800-pound men and women in their birthday suits.

Another example is graphic violence. The media today is afraid to show pictures when reporting on an extremely gruesome death, but 300 years ago, not a day went by without someone painting a beheading, a burning at the stake, a hanging or an extremely severe "wedgie".

I remember one painting in particular about Saint So-and-So; he was tied to a tree, and he had about, oh, 100 arrows sticking out of him. When I first saw this, I did not think, "My, what a struggle Christians must have gone through in their quest to find God in such a savage time." Noooooo, what I thought was, "What kind of bastard would stand around and paint such a picture without helping the poor guy?"

The thing is, though, that this sort of stuff happened all the time, and nobody really had a problem with it. Today, however, you would not be allowed to shoot even one arrow into somebody -- and do you know why? Because we are turning into a nation of wimps. "All right," you say, "what's your solution?" Well, if you really want it, here it is: BRING BACK CRUEL AND UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT.

Now, before you throw up on the paper and send me a dead animal via UPS, hear me out. Too many people think that a killer shouldn't be put to death, because they think that's cruel and unusual. They are wrong. Forcing the killer to be Richard Simmons' proctologist -- now THAT'S cruel and unusual punishment!

What we really need to do is revise our definition of cruel and unusual. Putting someone in the gas chamber is not cruel; forcing them to listen to New Kids on the Block is. Ten years in jail is not unusual; ten years in a Port-a-Potty is. You see, cruel and unusual punishment has gotten a bad rap in the past few decades, but I think that if we try hard enough, we can actually make it fun, like in the old days.

In the old days, punishment was a public event held on weekends so everybody could attend. Unfortunately, tractor pulls and monster truck races started drawing the crowds away, so we ended up just sticking people in jail, promising that once the tractor pulls were over, we'd drag them out and chop off a limb or two.

My point is, people in countries that have cruel and unusual punishment seem to have a lot less crime -- of course, these people also eat cats and dogs and change their underwear every other week, but I don't think we should hold that against them. We, however, don't have cruel and unusual punishment, and therefore it's hard to discourage robbery, assaults, karaoke and line dancing. My suggestion? Write to Congress. Or you could just barbecue naked.

Dan Gaffney is actually a handsome and well-trained Golden Retriever named "Buster." Buster is the local chapter president for the National Rifle Association, and he would greatly appreciate it if you rubbed his belly.

Graffiti covers sidewalks

While wandering around the University this past week -- using the ever-so-helpful parking map, an anomaly caught my eye.

On the sidewalk between the Business Administration Building and Eppler South, someone scrawled a series of interesting and somewhat original ideas and slogans with chalk. Among these were "Those who speak of revolution in terms of music have corpses in their mouths" and "Cash on Delivery" -- printed next to an outline of a body. A somewhat vulgar message was printed on an adjacent wall. The vandals even managed to scrawl "Begin to enjoy what you don't understand" on the steps of Hayes Hall.

Strange, indeed. But what I thought was even more unusual was the fact that, while I and a few others stopped to read the various slogans, most people simply walked on by. I am a first-year student, I hear that's the politically correct term for "freshman," so perhaps there's a story behind the "chalk bandit" that I don't know.

Perhaps this is a frequent occurrence on campus, or perhaps the chalk bandit is a well-known, mentally unstable individual. Maybe people have been trained to just walk on by when exposed to radical or otherwise different thoughts. Or maybe we have progressed to a point where being "different" is normal, and therefore boring.

The trend in recent years towards "alternative" culture, with an emphasis on being different for difference's sake, would seem to bear this out. However, this boring debate has been raging on for quite some time, and I have no desire to re-hash it here.

But regardless of the reasons most of us have to ignore these slogans, we are justified in doing so because of one important fact: the "chalk bandit" has given us absolutely no reason to stop and read his or her words. For all we know, he, she or they could be insane, or on drugs, or 12 years old -- hopefully not all three. Whatever the case, we have little or no inclination to stop and evaluate the ideas of an anonymous entity.

Guest Columnist

Mike Wendling

Now, often when we do stop to evaluate others opinions and ideas, they do not merit our scrutiny. Why should we listen to Newt Gingrich, or Bill Clinton, or Bob down the hall in 113? Yes, sometimes our criteria is flawed, but with no information regarding the source of the ideas, even the most flawed criteria is impossible to apply. But something disturbs me more than an anonymous cynic and the people who are ignoring him. It is the fact that, in a city and university such as Bowling Green, this person or group of persons could not find a more suitable outlet for their ideas than temporarily -- until the next good rain, or an encounter with a hose -- defacing University buildings and sidewalks.

It seems to me that this person could be much more influential, and reach a much wider audience, if they simply concentrated their efforts into a different medium. At the very least, they would experience much better working conditions.

Compare attempting to write legibly with sidewalk chalk at 3 a.m. while looking constantly over your shoulder with sitting in front of a computer screen with a glass of your favorite beverage at your side. The difference should be obvious.

On one hand, I am not in favor of having the University conduct unscheduled searches for sidewalk chalk, forcing the possessors of such an item to join the student government. On the other hand, I would like to see the thoughts of the sidewalk scribbles in a more complete fashion. Sure, "People who speak of revolution in terms of music have corpses in their mouths" is a nice catch phrase, but it hardly represents a total ideology, or even a total idea.

What can one possibly glean from this? The chalk bandit seems to be making a point, but there's no way to be sure. Is the chalk bandit trying to say "Rock and roll is dead" or is it something closer to "Beware, the end is near?"

Such incompleteness of thought is dangerous. Dangerous, not because the remaining pieces of chalk can be hurled at passing pedestrians, but because it leaves open a great possibility of being misunderstood. I would tend to think that the chalk bandit has, over the years, been very misunderstood. Why would he or she want to perpetuate this cycle?

Being misunderstood seems to be an epidemic in our sound byte, fast food, give-it-to-me-now global village. The prevailing attitude of "just give me a general idea of what's going on so I can form a weak opinion" has seeped into all levels of society, influencing countless governmental decisions and bringing success to at least one portly talk radio host.

Doesn't at least part of college involve being exposed to new ideas, and being able to constructively debate on such topics? Scrawling a few choice words on concrete not only eliminates any debate, but also prevents the scribbler from accurately representing his or her own ideology.

So, with this in mind, I would like to extend an invitation to anyone who agrees, disagrees, didn't read or could care less about this article. Give me a ring, my number is in the ever-so-helpful "Temporary Telephone Directory." I would especially like to hear from the chalk bandit. After all, you not only provided the inspiration for this column, but also made me 10 minutes late for English class.

Is the chalk bandit trying to say "Rock and roll is dead" or is it something closer to "Beware, the end is near"?

Books being re-cycled

The University recycling program, which has long collected cans and papers, has now added books to its recycling list.

The recycling program now accepts hard and soft cover books as well as textbooks, law books, paperbacks, spiral, wire and glue bound books. Magazines, newsprint and loose office paper should not be mixed in with the books (these items can be recycled separately).

This addition is expected to be helpful to the University's library facilities, as well as help professors who are in need of disposing of old books.

Last year the University recycling program collected 698 tons of materials. It hopes to increase that amount this year.

Call 372-8909 for pick-up or to find out the location of the nearest drop-off.

Exchange Program coming

Students who want to get away from Bowling Green for a while but can't leave school would be well advised to attend the National Student Exchange Program meeting this Friday, Sept. 15, at 12:00 p.m. in room 1010 of the Business Administration Building.

Through the NSE program, students are able to attend one of over 120 colleges across the United States. Students are able to take classes and the credit transfers back to the University.

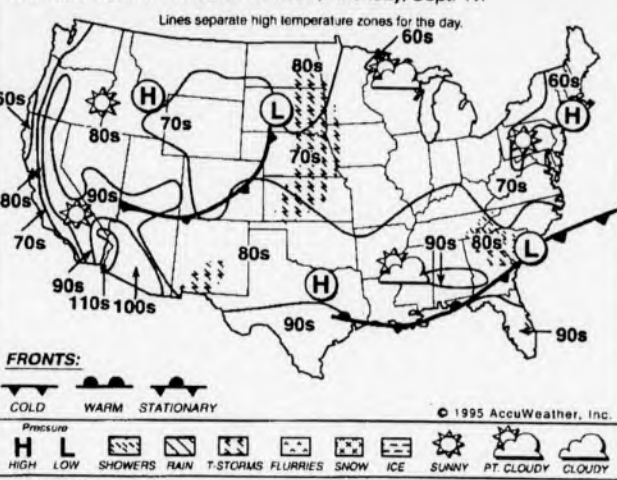

For more information about the meeting, or the program itself, contact Sue Young, in the Co-Op Office, 372-2451.

On-campus mailboxes for undergraduates

Undergraduate students living off campus are assigned a mailbox located in 208 Mosely. These offices are maintained by the Office of Registration and Records. Students with questions can contact the office at 372-7690.

NATIONAL Weather

The AccuWeather® forecast for noon, Monday, Sept. 11.

In Brief

Hurricane destruction continues

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico In its rampage through the Caribbean, Hurricane Luis tore apart more than houses, yachts and lives. It ripped an island in two.

As the center of Luis passed over Barbuda on Tuesday, it churned up 10-foot waves that breached a narrow inlet and severed a small northeast sliver of the island, part of the nation of Antigua and Barbuda.

While Barbuda's plight was perhaps most dramatic, the islands around it also were pounded by one of the most powerful storms of the century. The official death toll stood at 16 on Saturday, and could rise.

On St. Martin, the hardest-hit island, medical student William Jakobleff described how a 40-foot wave exploded through a wall of windows into the third-floor restaurant of the Great Bay Beach Hotel, where 200 guests had taken refuge.

"It sounded like the end of the world," said Jakobleff, of Yonkers, N.Y. "People were screaming and praying. We were just petrified for our lives."

Luis was not expected to hit the U.S. mainland, but the National Weather Service warned of heavy surf and coastal flooding from Florida to southern New England. On Fire Island, east of New York City, waves gouged out huge stretches of beach, toppling a three-story house into the surf.

The storm accelerated Saturday, and at 11 p.m. EDT was 245 miles northwest of Bermuda, moving northeast at 25 mph with maximum sustained winds of 100 mph. A tropical storm warning was posted for Bermuda.

The Daily Observer newspaper on Antigua reported Saturday that the coral reef that makes up Barbuda was cut into six pieces. This could not immediately be confirmed.

The storm wrecked 95 percent of the buildings on the island, and battered its infant tourist industry. All the hotels on Barbuda, 280 miles east of Puerto Rico, were severely damaged.

The town of Codrington, where all of Barbuda's 1,500 residents live, was flooded, and sea water contaminated the water supply, the newspaper reported.

The island was trying to develop a tourist industry, especially for snorkellers and skin-divers attracted to the 60 shipwrecks on the reef.

On Antigua, 65 percent of the buildings were destroyed. The U.S. Navy and British Royal Marines provided generators and thousands of gallons of water to get the hospital functioning and reopen the damaged airport.

"Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" host Robin Leach, who has a home in Antigua, coordinated an aid shipment carrying 66,000 pounds of relief supplies from AmeriCares, based in New Canaan, Conn.

St. Martin, only days ago a pristine vacation spot for wealthy tourists, was a jumble of ripped-apart yachts, houseboats and shantytowns.

Telephone and power poles toppled by 130-mph winds and nine-foot surf were still down. Hundreds of yachts and houseboats were tossed across piers and beaches. Jetties and airports were trashed, roads washed away and trees uprooted.

You may kiss the bride

Tsai Feng-chun, left, a 29-year-old surgeon and amateur diver, kisses his bride, Lu Hui-chen, 28, after they were married in Taiwan's first underwater wedding located off Taiwan's Orchid Island.

Firefighters from Holland arrived Saturday and searched for bodies in the flattened shantytowns of galvanized iron and plywood where poor Haitians and Dominicans lived.

The Netherlands administers the better-developed side of the island, called St. Maarten. The other side, St. Martin, is French territory.

Dutch authorities closed the border Friday and imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew to prevent looting. American Airlines began flying residents only to the island on commercial flights Saturday.

Officials also turned back chartered helicopters with reporters on board, making it impossible to confirm the hurricane's toll. Authorities told some American reporters they were tired of the negative publicity.

Dutch officials conceded Saturday that many more people may have died than indicated by the conflicting official death tolls.

"The figure could rise," said Jan Meijer, a Dutch government spokesman in The Hague, Netherlands.

"We know that a very large percentage of the houses are severely damaged," he said. "We are not sure what we will find under the mess."

A U.S. Navy C-130 Hercules cargo plane flew tons of relief supplies to St. Maarten and carried out 53 Americans when it returned to Roosevelt Roads Naval Station in Puerto Rico.

Lt. Cmdr. Ed Barker, a Roosevelt Roads spokesman, said the American Consulate had arranged two commercial flights that flew out 400 Americans on Saturday. He estimated there may have been 1,000 Americans stranded there by the hurricane.

In addition to crushed buildings and ruined crops, Luis also could badly hurt the region's crucial tourist industries.

Silent auction to raise funds for expansion

Gallery to house mementos from Gish actress' lifetime

Genell Pavelich
The BG News

On October 13, a silent auction taking place at the University will include such mementos as a poster from Forrest Gump autographed by Tom Hanks and Sally Field, a personalized coffee mug from Bob Hope and a lock of hair from Lily Tomlin.

The auction is raising money for the expansion of the Dorothy and Lillian Gish Film Theater and Gallery, which was dedicated on June 11, 1976.

The theater, which is located in Hanna Hall, has many mementos from the lives of the sisters, said Ralph Wolfe, curator of the theater and gallery.

"The gallery houses memorabilia from the legendary film actresses' careers and artifacts associated with them," he said.

Director for Planned Giving Marica Sloan-Latta said the auction is part of a tribute to Wolfe, who retired from teaching this past year.

"In lieu of a retirement gift, we decided to try to raise funds to contribute to the expansion of the gallery," she said.

Wolfe said it is necessary to expand the gallery due to the acquisition of memorabilia Lillian Gish left to the University when she died in 1993.

Sloan-Latta said the gallery will include books, photographs and the gown worn by Gish when she received an Academy Award for lifetime achievement.

Wolfe, who came up with the idea of the theater and gallery dedicated to the Gish sisters, said Lillian Gish made her acting debut in Wood County.

The auction, which will take place in the Eva Marie Saint theater, was Sloan-Latta's idea to recognize everything Wolfe has done for the University.

"Ralph Wolfe has made such a tremendous difference to this campus," she said. "It was his idea to have the Gish Film Theater and Gallery here, so without him it never would have happened."

Other items to be auctioned include autographed photographs of Douglas Fairbanks Jr., comedy videos from Lily Tomlin, an autographed book by Roddy McDowell, and an autographed biography signed by Lillian Gish before she died.

"This is a varied and unusual collection of items from people who knew and respected the Gish sisters," she said.

The Gish Film Theater and Gallery, which can seat 168 people, shows free movies on different nights including international films on Mondays and classics on Thursdays.

Students linked with professors through e-mail

Amanda Paskiet
The BG News

Along with their syllabi and office hours, many professors handed out their e-mail addresses at the beginning of this semester.

Many students who registered for their BGSU accounts at the University are better able to communicate with their professors out of the classroom through e-mail.

With e-mail, students in large classes are able to more thoroughly introduce themselves, ask questions and convey their opinion on the day's lecture.

"I think being able to e-mail my professors will really help me," freshman Molli Manworren said. "I have a huge biology class and it will give me a chance to ask him a question I didn't get a chance or forgot to ask in class."

Marc Simon, assistant professor of political science, said that in the future he would like a bulletin board service to be available. Students can post their questions and voice their thoughts about classes. They can also get help through other students as well as through their professors.

"I would like to be able to have out-of-class discussions [through e-mail]," Simon said. "That way students could think about the readings and possibly want to read further into a subject."

Freshman Sandy Szeiter said the e-mail option comes in hand for her.

"I'm kind of shy about speaking up in class," Szeiter said. "I feel more comfortable e-mailing my professors because the rest of the class isn't there to make me feel stupid."

BGSU presents Austrian series

John Wenzel
The BG News

The Department of German, Russian and East Asian Languages will sponsor a series to educate the University community about Austrian culture.

The department is presenting "Faces of Austria: The Second Republic at Fifty," to commemorate several anniversaries.

1995 marks the anniversary of several major events, including the end of World War II and the beginning of the democratic second republic.

"Faces of Austria" is "a critical celebration of the first 50 years of the second republic," said Christina Guenther, an organizer of the series.

The series runs from Sept. 5 to Nov. 9.

Music acts vary at festival Folk musician sings his way to success

Amy Johnson
The BG News

Jazz, rhythm and blues, pop, country and reggae are just a few of the types of musical sounds that surrounded the downtown area this past weekend.

Music acts for the young and old began Friday evening and lasted until Sunday evening. A variety of local and nationally recognized performers visited the 1995 Black Swamp Arts Festival, many for the first time and others making return visits.

The Kind, a local band, has played at the festival for the past three years, said Jose Luna, congo player for The Kind.

"We love playing at the festival because of the college atmosphere," Luna said. "It's a plus that the city has a college campus because the students' love and attitude toward our music makes us enjoy our music even more."

The Kind played on the second stage Saturday evening along with other local bands such as Paste.

"This is the first time our band has played at the festival," said Iain Ellis, lead singer of Paste. "Second stage was rocking. The performance was in the open with friends of the city surrounding the stage which creates a great feeling."

Bands, ensembles, fiddlers, guitarists and other musicians performed individual acts throughout the festival.

The Youth Art Area contained performers such as Gemini, a musical duet of twin brothers. Gemini performed "A Musical Celebration for Children and the Whole Family" Saturday afternoon. The performance encouraged children and adults to join in the songs.

Other youth performances included the Tree House Troupe, Tom Gorman and varieties of other performers.

Michael Robert Dearth, an acoustic blues-folk vocalist and guitarist from Toledo, played Saturday evening in the Beer Garden. Dearth said performing at the festival was great because of the attention the audience displayed during his performance.

"The crowd was built in," Dearth said. "There were enough people here to dig my music and that's what I loved most about performing here tonight."

Dearth has performed at BW-3's and Grounds for Thought and expects to be back next year.

Saturday evening performances ended with Chubby Carrier and the Bayou Swamp Band. Carrier's style is exotic Louisiana zydeco, a fast and funky dance music provided by accordians, percussion and vocals.

Members of the audience attended the late night performance for different reasons.

"I needed to get out of my place for awhile and I heard zydeco was a lot of fun," said Julia Reimer, a Theatre 141 instructor. "I think the festival is an interesting community type of viewing."

"I read about him [Chubby Carrier] and wanted to hear for myself," said Jimmy Flottemesch, a junior finance major. "They sound great. I'm really impressed."

Dawn Keller
The BG News

At 48, Michael Smith did what most musicians only dream of. He made it big -- "An overnight success," according to The New York Times.

However, Smith said descriptions like "overnight sensation" don't mean anything.

"It's kind of funny ... I get up every day, and hope my body works, and hope I get to write a song," he added.

Smith sings all of his own songs because "it's easier to remember my own lyrics."

The singer said the only reason he performs is because he loves folk music and listened to it even as a young child.

"I've been playing and singing for 35 years," Smith said. "It's fun for me."

"I wanted to do it more than anything else in the world," he added. "If you really want to [make it], you'll find a way."

Only a few years ago, Smith held a job not related to music. Then he wrote music for a stage adaptation of John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath," which won Tony awards for best play and best director.

The play kept him busy for four years before he had the chance to pursue his career -- starting with a one-man show in Chicago.

Smith wrote for other musicians, but was excited to have the chance to sing his own songs.

"I get to do songs exactly the way I saw them," he said in an interview at the Folk and Bluegrass Festival. "I'm very much like an architect. I'm giving you a very precise drawing of how this tune goes ... I think of my singing and playing as an attempt to show how the song goes."

His most-recorded songs: "The Dutchman," "Spoon River," "Elvis Imitator" and "The Last Days of Pompeii" have caused many to call Smith the best songwriter in the English Language, according to Urban Campfires Magazine.

Smith said The Beatles are the only band that has influenced him.

"You may not be able to tell from all of my songs, but they are the only band I listen to," he said.

His favorite song is always his newest release, ("Whatever it May Be") but he said there isn't one that has more meaning than any other.

"It's kind of asking someone which child is their favorite -- you just can't pick one," he said.

However, Smith does laugh at his songs during his concerts.

"[Panther in Michigan] is a about a story in The Chicago Tribune," he said. "That's why it doesn't rhyme."

Festival impresses with diverse arts

Jim Barker
The BG News

This year's Black Swamp Arts Festival offered a diverse array of artistic creations, making a trip to the festival a worthwhile one for those with a soft spot for crafts and handmade goods.

Patrons of the festival were treated to both juried and non-juried selections including paintings, pottery, blown glass and jewelry. Juried art submissions underwent evaluation from a panel of expert judges, and the winners given prize ribbons.

Some artists were impressive enough to merit purchase awards from the festival jury.

A purchase award usually means an artist is guaranteed an advanced sale from festival organizers. This ensures winning artists of a profit as well as a chance to show off the purchase award distinction.

Non-juried artists submitted fees in order to reserve booths in which to display their wares. Amongst the non-juried crafts was a booth run by the University's glass blowing department, a student-run display which funnels its sales money back into the glass blowing program.

Paul Boesch, a biology/pre-med major minoring in art, worked at the glass blowers' booth Saturday.

"All the glass students donated all this stuff, and then all the money raised will go back to the department," Boesch said. "It's to keep the materials fee down as

Weekend fun for all Volunteers help make Black Swamp 'best yet'

Carolyn Ruegg
The BG News

The hard work put out by the volunteers for the third annual Black Swamp Festival paid off this year.

With an estimated crowd of 20,000 people, "this year's festival has been the best yet," said Kelly Wicks, a volunteer for the performing arts committee.

Wicks said the music this year was good for several reasons.

"It was a combination of the diversity of acts, more promotion and the fact that it was the festival's third year," he said.

The most popular music event of the weekend was Friday night when singer Chubby Carrier took the stage.

"Everyone at the festival seemed to enjoy listening to him," he said.

Overall, Wicks said that the festival ran smoothly with only minor adjustment to be made in the future.

Wicks also said the organization is always looking for new music submissions from any type of group and hopes that there will be more next year. However, Wicks said that is just detail work which can always be improved.

"It ran like clockwork all weekend long," Wicks said.

The large crowds weren't the only ones who enjoyed the festival. Those who helped put on the festival had fun as well.

Kelly Fletcher, a volunteer for the Youth Art committee, was glad she got involved with the organization.

"It was a good experience for me," she said. "I enjoyed it a lot."

Fletcher volunteered for five hours at the festival in her first year with the organization.

Lynn Goza, another volunteer for Youth Art, said this year's festival was very successful because of the dedication of the volunteers.

"Myself and this committee put together the stands for the Youth Art displays," she said. "We had wonderful success thanks to the people who helped us."

Old street signs revisited

Oktoberfest reminds Cincinnati of German origins

The Associated Press

CINCINNATI (AP) — Charles Reifsteck was just a kid growing up in suburban Reading during World War I, so he doesn't remember much about that time.

But he does recall the day when his teachers led the pupils outside the grade school and lit a bonfire.

"They marched us all out in the yard and burned German newspapers and books, and everybody shouted," said Reifsteck, now 85.

Germans were among the earliest settlers of Cincinnati, founded in 1788. Today, nearly half of the area's population is of German descent, and the city has one of the largest Oktoberfest celebrations outside Munich.

But the city's German heritage became a sore point when the United States entered WWI. Burning German books was just one way that American cities tried to downplay their Teutonic past.

Many businesses and individuals dropped their German names in favor of American-sounding ones. And in 1918, Cincinnati's City Council passed an ordinance that renamed German-sounding street names.

Bremen Street, named after the port from which many Germans had sailed for America, became Republic Street. Humboldt Avenue turned into Taft Road. And Berlin Street was rechristened Woodrow Street.

Now, plans are in the works to recognize those long-forgotten street names.

The Public Works Department has recommended that signs listing the former German names of 12 streets be installed under the signs bearing the street's current names.

City Council is to vote on the plan Wednesday, during the weeklong Oktoberfest.

"This really puts all of the anti-German feelings from the war period to rest," said Don Heinrich Tolzmann, president of the German-American Citizens League of Greater Cincinnati, which is celebrating its 100th anniversary.

"It really took a long time for these anti-German feelings to subside," said Tolzmann, whose group represents 14 local German-American societies with a total of 10,000 members.

"It's only since the 1970s that there has been a revival of public interest and pride in things German."

If the plan is approved, it will take up to two months to make all the signs and post them on the streets.

Ron Meyer, chairman of the Cincinnati Public Works Department's committee of names, holds an example of what new German street signs would look like outside City Hall on Thursday.

Incentive plan prizes scholars

The Associated Press

COLUMBUS — Future scientists should be given the same incentives as future college athletes, said former Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Rhodes has proposed a $120,000 scholarship program for students pursuing careers in science and mathematics at colleges and universities in Ohio.

"We should begin with the identification of the top 600 high school students this next budget biennium and go after them as vigorously as we recruit the most talented athletes," Rhodes said.

Rhodes said he had discussed the plan with The Ohio State University officials.

"I think this could kick off by the first of the year," Rhodes said.

Each undergraduate scholarship would be worth $30,000 annually — $15,000 a year while the student is in school with another $15,000 annually put in a trust for those who stay in Ohio after graduation.

doing pretty good today, very well," he said.

Across the Main Street intersection, juried artists were doing equally well. Yvonne Hughson of Columbus said this was the first year she had submitted work to the festival.

Hughson's booth, Dolls by Yvonne, was a menagerie of intricately constructed hand-made dolls, varying in style from fairies and witches to Santa Claus and clowns.

Hughson said she has been making dolls ever since she was a little girl.

"I've been making dolls for about 10 years now, and dolls [for sale] for about four years now," Hughson said. "I went to the Columbus College of Art and Design for illustration, and we had a three-dimensional illustration class where we had to make dolls. And that's what kind of peaked my interest."

College art experience was prevalent among this year's festival entrants. Deborah Murney-Melroy of Black Cat Clay Works in Sycamore, Ohio, said her business started off as a cheaper alternative to one of her previous hobbies.

"I went to Northern Illinois University, started out as an art education major," she said.

Sampras outlasts Agassi in Open final

Steve Wilstein
The Associated Press

NEW YORK -- Knuckles bleeding, aces knifing through the whipping wind, Pete Sampras outlasted Andre Agassi to capture a third U.S. Open title Sunday and gain the No. 1 ranking in the esteem of his greatest rival, if not the rankings themselves.

Sampras spilled blood diving for a volley, rocked Agassi with 24 aces, and when they engaged in the most crucial baseline rallies beat the defending champion at his own game to win 6-4, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5, two months after taking his third straight Wimbledon.

Right down to the end, when Sampras served his 142nd ace of the tournament at 120 mph, he put on brilliant show of his power, control and resilience under pressure that he dedicated to his absent and ailing coach, Tim Gullikson.

"That's for you, Timmy," Sampras said to the television camera, knowing Gullikson was watching back home in suburban Chicago. "Wish you were here."

One point, a magnificent rally of 22 shots that sent them both scurrying from side to side, made all the difference in the first set and, ultimately, the match.

A backhand crosscourt by Sampras ended that rally, broke Agassi and closed out a set in which Agassi had yielded only two points in his first four service games.

It was a game that showed both the best of Sampras and the worst of Agassi, with a little luck thrown in. Sampras reached his first break point with a forehand return that clipped the net cord and trickled over out of Agassi's reach. Agassi's service winner brought it back to deuce, but he went to break-point again when he clubbed an easy overhead 10 feet long.

Agassi thought he'd even it up again when he got Sampras running desperately in a baseline duel. Instead, it was Sampras who put away that last shot of the longest rally, and Agassi who could only stare at it and hang his head.

Agassi, who came in with a 26-match winning streak, scrambled back in the third set, capitalizing on Sampras' suddenly more erratic serves and breaking him for the first time in the third game. When Agassi broke Sampras again to close the set, it seemed for a few moments that he might finally wear him down, push him all the way to a fifth and raise this final to the level of the hype that preceded it.

"I thought I'd sneak my way into the fifth," Agassi said, "and roll the dice a little bit. But it didn't happen."

This match, for all of their fine rallies and all of Sampras' aces, never quite lived up to its potential.

The swirling wind on a cool afternoon made it harder for Agassi, who counts on the timing of his groundstrokes. For Sampras, his serves cut right through the wind, and his volleys reduced the chances of the wind tossing his shots around.

Sampras bunched his aces, dealing out three in one game in the second set, four in the sixth game of the fourth set. He had aces on three of his last five serves.

Agassi blamed his own weariness as much as the wind for the loss, though he gave Sampras full credit.

"It's been a long summer," Agassi said. "I had a couple of days off after Boris, which helped me. In the first set, I felt my legs. ... It was way too early in the match to feel that way. I was lacking a little strength. I guess you could say I didn't have pep in my step."

"It was tough conditions today. It didn't lend itself to great tennis. You couldn't do enough with the ball. I didn't come near his serve in that fourth set. The problem is I didn't make him feel the pressure."

The official rankings mean little to either of them. What counts most are Grand Slam titles, and this year Sampras has the two biggest and Agassi only the one he grabbed back in January at the Australian Open.

"Come December 31st, he'll feel better about the year than I will," Agassi said. "On the other hand, I'd play him for a hundred bucks right now."

They played this one for much more -- $575,000 for the winner, half that for the runner-up.

"It means a lot to have been out there to try to defend it," Agassi said, "but it hurts not to win it."

Agassi will remain No. 1 for the moment, Sampras No. 2, though that could change by year's end. Agassi has held the top ranking since April 10.

Agassi brought the longest match-winning streak into the Open final since Bjorn Borg won 39 matches going into the 1978 final against Jimmy Connors. Borg, too, lost, falling to Connors 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Henry shakes off opening game

Missouri running back Brock Olivo pushes past teammate Jay Murchinson who blocks Bowling Green's Tony Everhart.

Scott Brown
The BG News

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Ryan Henry stayed cool.

In the first 90 minutes of the season, Henry's offense committed 10 turnovers, or about one every nine minutes.

And the 3rd-year Falcon quarterback was personally responsible for nine of those miscues.

Not a problem.

"It doesn't bother me," Henry said. "I could throw 35 interceptions, and if we still win the game, I'm happy."

Win is exactly what the Falcons did -- and in historic fashion. And a lot of the credit goes to the Falcon offense and its much-maligned quarterback.

Henry threw two touchdown passes in the third quarter to lead Bowling Green to a 17-10 upset win over Missouri on Saturday.

"We were just off in the first half," said Henry, who threw two picks in the first two quarters as the Falcons were held scoreless. "We had a lot of opportunities where we were close but we didn't capitalize."

"We calmed down at half-time. The second half we were able to come out and hit those ones we had been a little off on."

Henry's final numbers:

24-of-38 for 170 yards, two touchdowns and three interceptions.

"It was a huge win," Henry said. "It's an even bigger win when you put it in perspective that we came off a bad performance last week."

It was just a week ago when the Falcons were losing at home to unheralded Louisiana Tech and Henry was throwing up six interceptions -- and 20,000 boo-birds were letting him know about it.

"We knew we could on the field with this team and compete."

Ryan Henry

Bowling Green quarterback

"It was difficult all week dealing with the outside skepticism," Henry said. "But we got closer [as a team] this week than we've been in a while."

"We rallied around each other. We came out today and it was a great opportunity to prove to everyone that we are a heck of a lot better than we were a week ago."

The scene at the end of the game on the Bowling Green sidelines showed that. There were hugs and cheers all around as the Falcons turned last week's loss -- the darkest etch in coach Gary Blackney's tenure here -- into one of the great victories in school history.

It's been quite a turnaround.

"I think the difference was practice this week," said line-backer Jason Woullard. "I was just telling the guys that we won this game on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday when we were out on the practice field."

"We don't get a lot of recognition [outside our conference]," Blackney said. "Hopefully now people will realize how good we can be."

"Never did we doubt ourselves," Henry said after the Falcons were shut out in the first half. "It wasn't one of those things like, 'Oh boy, here we go again.' We did the right things, but it just didn't click."

"We knew we could be on the field with this team and compete."

Compete, they did. Henry threw the two touchdowns in the second half that proved to be the difference.

The first, a one-yarder to a leaping Trevor Stover in the third quarter, started a string in which the Falcon quarterback completed 10 passes in a row.

It wasn't 35 interceptions, but Henry will take the win, and, for the first time so far in this '95 season, be able to relax.

Thirty-year celebration ends with Falcon victory

Pat Murphy
The BG News

It was 1965 when Bowling Green collected its first varsity and home win in soccer history over Kenyon, 6-0. Thirty years and 252 wins later BG commemorated the day with a 3-0 win over Xavier.

Sophomore Jason Began, the only Mid-American Conference Newcomer of the Year in school history, broke a scoreless game with a goal at 73:46 from Jason Follebout and Tony Dore. After a foul by Musketeer Jeremy Fultz, Dore crossed the ball to Follebout who got off a weak shot on Xavier goalie Greg Kleiman. The rebound came right to Began who ripped it past a diving Kleiman.

"Follebout got the ball and I wasn't sure if he was shooting or passing," Began said. "It was a great touch if he was passing the ball and I just wound up right there. They might have had some bad marking on the play so I was left wide open."

BG, now 3-0, slowly exploited Xavier's poor man-to-man defensive zone coverage. They outshot Xavier in the first half but were unable to score with a shot by Began ringing the crossbar and a Joe Burch shot riding along the goal line.

"They [Xavier] try to force you to exploit their weakness," said BG head coach Mel Mahler. "They only keep three players back on defense and basically they're challenging you to attack that. They live and die by the sword."

"They [Xavier] try to force you to exploit their weakness. They only keep three players back on defense and basically challenge you to attack them."

Mel Mahler

Bowling Green head soccer coach

Xavier lived by the sword in the first half but BG jabbed continuously at the Musketeers' skin.

"We had some great chances early on," Mahler said. "When you miss some chances you kind of force the play a little more and the next miss is more magnified than the previous one."

Began felt that the Falcon's experience eased the frustration of not being able to score.

"When we miss one now we just want another chance really bad to prove to ourselves that we can do it again," Began said.

Began's goal, his third of the season, ignited the Falcon attack. Ten minutes later Steve Klein and Burch, last season's lethal duo, hooked up for the first time this year.

Klein, who tied the BG All-Time single season assist record last year, took a pass from Dave Michels down the right wing. He crossed the ball to Burch, who scored 13 goals last year, and he chested the ball into the net at 83:40 to give BG a 2-0 lead.

"I felt that if we got one we would get two or three quite quickly after that," Mahler said.

The Brown and Orange's final goal came from backer Peter Kolp who scored from Klein and Jon Giganti. The three goals were more than enough for freshman goalkeeper Scott Vallow. Vallow, making his home debut, stopped all three shots that he faced to earn his second shutout in three games.

"Scott again was just solid nothing spectacular," Mahler said. "He wasn't really tested at any point in time. He wasn't spectacular and he wasn't below par he just did the job."

Sunday's game concluded the BGSU soccer alumni weekend. There was an alumni game Saturday and Sunday marked the first time a game was played with the new renovations to Mickey Cochrane Field. Also, a moment of silence was held before Sunday's game for former Falcon coach Gary Palmisano who died last December.

"It was an absolutely fantastic weekend," Mahler said. "The whole theme of our weekend was celebrating the entire Bowling Green soccer family."

Tracey Losi in the lead at the Marshall meet followed by Kristin Gaddis of Bowling Green and Ann-Marie Hynes of Rio Grande.

Losi leads the way for cross country

Steve Wildman
The BG News

Saturday Tracey Losi showed why she is the defending Mid-American Conference champion in women's cross country by winning the Marshall Invitational with a time of 18:02. The team captain lead Bowling Green to victory over Ohio University, Marshall University, Rio Grande University and Kentucky at Huntington, W.Va.

This win was a special one for head coach Steve Price. Every cross country coach in the MAC picked Ohio University to be the best team and the one to win the conference. Only one coach picked BG: Steve Price. "This was the first time that we have beat Ohio University. This victory shows that we can compete with the best and win. This is the best team meet that have I have been part of in a long time," Price said.

Losi's performance stood out, but team running was the main reason for the victory at Marshall. "We ran great as a team, five of the first eight runners were from Bowling Green. Tracey lead and the team followed," Price said.

Senior Kristin Gaddis finished third with a time of 18:13. Senior Suzanne Isco finished fifth with a time 18:19. Junior Renee Strayer finished sixth with a time of 18:36 and Sophomore Missy Lyne's time of 19:04 gave her a eighth place finish.

Bowling Green won the meet without the help of Junior Laura Hall, and Sophomore Christin Lacroix. Both runners are coming back from injury and the course was far from ideal.

"This was the most rugged course I have ever seen. My runners had to run on sand, over gravel, and up and down several hills," Price said.

Bowling Green's men's cross country team was not able to overcome MAC rival and meet winner, Ohio University. The Falcons took second while Rio Grande University took third. The University of Kentucky finished fourth and host Marshall University took fifth.

A disappointed Sid Sink, Men's coach, said that the loss to Ohio University sent a message to his team.

"This meet has sent a wake-up call to my team. We are going to have to run more aggressively as a team if we expect to beat Ohio University."

The conditions of the course were not the greatest but they were not the major contributor to BG's loss.

"It's hard to be aggressive on a course with treacherous footing because your runners are trying to avoid injuries. But every runner had the same conditions so that is no excuse for the loss," Sink said.

Bowling Green did see some bright spots in the performances of Alan Boos, Tim Arndt and Dan Flaute.

Boos came in third with a time of 26:19. Arndt came in fifth with a time of 26:24, and Flaute's time of 26:43 gave him a eleventh place finish.

A second place finish has not sent a foreboding message to Sink who is positive about the rest of the season.

"If you have to have a bad meet you want it in the beginning of the season. It gives your team a chance to see problems, solve them and head in the right direction," Sink said.

However, Bowling Green has not handed the MAC title to Ohio University. Bowling Green will see OU again at the All-Ohio Championships on Oct. 10.

Steelers survive injuries for win

Michael A. Lutz
The Associated Press

HOUSTON -- The Pittsburgh Steelers didn't need to be at full strength to beat the Houston Oilers.

With Rod Woodson and Neil O'Donnell sidelined by injuries, Andre Hastings returned the game's first punt 72 yards for a touchdown and Mike Tomczak, subbing for the injured O'Donnell, directed the Steelers to a 34-17 victory on Sunday, benefiting from blunders by the Oilers offense.

Hastings' return helped Pittsburgh (2-0) take a 17-3 first half lead and the Steelers made it 24-3 in the third quarter on Erric Pegram's 22-yard run with 2:51 elapsed.

"I got a couple of big blocks to spring me down the sidelines," Hastings said. "That set the tempo, we look at a punt return like that as the first play for the offense. All the guys have been blocking well for me and they made a few blocks to spring me around the corner."

The Oilers (1-1) struck in the third quarter on a 1-yard run by Chris Chandler, who faked a handoff and rolled left untouched into the end zone with 10:53 elapsed.

But it was too late. The Steeler defense made plenty of errors of its own but never let the Oilers break out. Chandler threw two interceptions, one a 32-yard touchdown return by Carnell Lake, and was sacked four times for 38 yards in losses. Chad Brown got three of the sacks.

"We just hurt ourselves today," Oilers coach Jeff Fisher said. "When you play a team that's played together like the Steelers for years, you can't make mistakes like we did."

Pass interference penalties by Deon Figures and Lake twice gave the Oilers first downs at the Pittsburgh 1 but it still took eight plays for Chandler to score from the Steeler 3.

Lake made up for his penalty with a 32-yard interception return with 9:58 elapsed in the fourth quarter and Norm Johnson added a 40-yard field goal with 17 seconds left in the game.

Pittsburgh's defense played well without cornerback Woodson, out for the season with a knee injury.

Tomczak filled in for O'Donnell, out with a broken finger on his passing hand and completed 13 of 24 passes for 123 yards, including a 15-yard first quarter touchdown pass to Mark Bruener, and didn't suffer a sack. Johnson added a 43-yard field goal in the second quarter.

"That's my job, I'm a workmanlike kind of guy," Tomczak said. "My job is to keep this train rolling. I was very optimistic coming into the game and you'd like to get off to a quick start."

Chandler, playing despite a painful left shoulder bruise, completed 15 of 30 passes for 176 yards.

"I couldn't throw like I wanted to, I couldn't move around," Chandler said. "It's just frustrating that something like that happened initially. Hopefully, I'll get a week when I don't get beat up and I'll be fine. When I went to throw, I couldn't."

The Steelers took quick control of the first half after Hastings got the Steelers off to an electrifying start with his 72-yard punt return with only 1:11 elapsed in the game.

Hastings fielded the ball, ran to the left sideline and snaked his way through a hole

Browns ease by Buccaneers

Chuck Melvin
The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- Vinny Testaverde rarely had it this easy in Tampa Bay.

Facing his former team for the first time in a regular-season game, Testaverde passed for 256 yards and two touchdowns Sunday as the Cleveland Browns beat the Buccaneers 22-6.

The Browns (1-1) built a 19-0 halftime lead when Testaverde connected with Keenan McCardell for two touchdowns in the final 74 seconds of the half.

McCardell caught a 6-yard scoring pass with 1:14 left in the second quarter, and after the Cleveland defense forced a quick punt, Testaverde needed just 28 seconds to take his team 70 yards to another score. McCardell exploited a mixup in the Bucs secondary and was wide open for his 32-yard TD reception.

Cleveland's defense, which allowed the fewest points in the NFL last year, made it stand up, allowing only a 2-yard scoring run by Errict Rhett in the fourth quarter.

The Bucs (1-1) dropped to 0-5 against Cleveland. Tampa Bay is the only team, other than the two expansion teams, without a victory against Cleveland.

It could have been worse. Tampa Bay punter Reggie Roby couldn't scoop up a bad snap from Ed Brady earlier in the second quarter, giving Cleveland the ball at the Bucs 2. But the Browns couldn't punch it in -- a penalty erased an apparent touchdown on a faked field goal -- and had to settle for Matt Stover's 23-yard field goal, his second of the game.

Stover added a 20-yarder midway through the fourth quarter when Cleveland again failed to take full advantage of a Tampa Bay turnover. Trent Dilfer's fumble at the Tampa Bay 14 as he was sacked for the sixth of seven times in the game.

It was the Browns' first seven-sack performance since the final game of the 1993 season.

Stover has made 23 consecutive field goal attempts, an ongoing team record.

Testaverde completed 17 of 27 passes without an interception, raising his record as Cleveland's starter to 14-9. He was never part of a winning season in six seasons at Tampa Bay after the Bucs made him the No. 1 overall pick in the 1987 draft.

The Browns signed him as a free agent in 1993.

Dilfer, who led the Bucs to an upset victory at Philadelphia last week, completed 20 of 36 passes for 255 yards and two interceptions.

Don Griffin got the first of the pickoffs, an end-zone interception on second-and-goal from the 8 in the third quarter. Stevon Moore then stalled a Tampa Bay drive with an interception at the Cleveland 13 with four minutes left.

The Bucs also had a short field goal attempt blocked.

Rhett, whose touchdown was the first allowed by the Browns on the ground in their last 17 quarters at home, ran for 89 yards on 23 carries, and Jackie Harris caught eight passes for 95 yards for Tampa Bay.

and quarter's first play, but the Tigers would not score again.

"The defense came to play," Blackney said. "They really ran to the ball well and tackled well."

The defense's highlight came at the beginning of the fourth quarter, after Starks' go-ahead score. Missouri had driven to the Falcon 10, but faced a 4th-and-one situation.

Tailback Devin West was stopped for a loss of two on the play. A pair of sophomores, linebacker Gardner Howard and defensive back Chioke Bradley, combined on the big stop for Bowling Green.

"To me, that was the turning point of the game on that fourth down," Blackney said. "That lit our offense and our defense up."

The Missouri offense did anything but light things up against the Falcon defense. After rushing for 350 yards last week, the Falcons held them to 177 yards on the ground this week.

In the second half, when the Tigers went scoreless, they managed just 101 total yards -- 13 in the third quarter.

"We played Bowling Green defense today," said linebacker Jason Woullard. "We went through this week and we knew that the key was running right to the ball and playing with a lot of emotion and intensity."

After the fourth-down stand, the Falcons forced fumbles on Missouri's next two possessions. The second fumble set up Derek Schorejs for a 41-yard field goal to cushion the lead with 4:02 to go in the game.

Missouri then drove to the Bowling Green 37, but turned the ball over on downs to seal the outcome.

"The defense was huge for us today," Henry said. "The fourth-and-one when they went for it, on those our defense is going to make you pay."

The Tigers scored on their first drive of the game on a 31-yard field goal by Mark Norris. Brock Olivo then scored on a 29-yard run on the second quarter's first play to put the Falcons down 10-0.

Three first half turnovers kept the Falcons from seriously threatening. Five times they journeyed past midfield, but all five times they came away empty.

"We had to come back and regroup from that in the second half and we just had to get back to playing good, sound, fundamental football," Blackney said.

The Falcons netted only 108 total yards on the ground, with Michael Parker leading the way with 30 on three carries. Tight end Trevor Stover caught seven passes for 50 yards, while tailback Darius Card caught six for 31 yards.

The heart of rock-n-roll stays

Reflections of Jim Garcia

Music makes us a part of history

Imagine. There once was a time when there was no such thing as rock-n-roll. There were no mid-summer rock concerts, no mosh pits, and no, there was no MTV.

There was. Really.

I don't know about all of you, but for me, that is hard to fathom. I can't imagine listen to on a daily basis. Think about it. The music we listen to seems to narrate the stories of our lives and tells other generations of the past and those to come who we are, what life was like in these times, and the social issues that seem to define our culture. I know this sounds crazy, but in a way, the music we listen to has made us a part of history.

Whether we realize it or not, the music we listen to seems to provide a sense of community among all of us listeners. Although rock-n-roll can be grouped into so many different genres now with so many different audiences, the message behind the music seems to speak a language all its own - one that has the ability to bridge the gap or burn the bridges between generations.

Music has generated a special set of circumstances by which it becomes necessary to look at how rock-n-roll has been revolutionized by the events that have taken place in American society. For example, in the '60s, San Francisco became a magnet formed in an anti-establishment fervor, characterized by hallucinogenic drugs and a mood of experimentation. It was in this city, known for its liberal social mores, that social rebels, including the Grateful Dead and Jefferson Airplane first took flight. The same was true in the late '70s when rap music had its start as the voice of the streets in New York City, and even in the '90s when grunge music poured from the heart of Seattle.

Rock-n-roll has inspired a global revolution, one that has changed life in so many ways throughout the decades, but one that has carried out the same mission time after time. Freedom of expression, that's what it's all about, folks. Music is the most universal tongue available now as it has become a theatrical, spiritual, sexual, political, social and artistic movement. And something that encompasses so many societal spheres should not be taken lightly.

A LESSON IN

not being able to turn on the radio and hearing my favorite songs, but instead listening to jazz, big band or classical music, highlighted by an occasional evening radio show. But most of all, I can't even imagine what the world would be like if all the freedoms granted by rock-n-roll were denied, or even worse, silenced.

Sometimes I think we all take for granted that we live in an era almost completely influenced by the music we

Let's play some Gone Daddy Finch

BAND REVIEW

When it comes to power-pop punk rock, local music giants, Gone Daddy Finch have all but cornered the Toledo area market.

"We love Bruce Springsteen, which is why we don't fully fit into the alternative scene," said Eric Klinger, the band's bassist and contributing vocalist.

"It's rock. It's rock music where we can do anything we want," said Tommy Grybowski, GDF's drummer as well as a contributing vocalist.

Although the band has only been around since January 16, 1991 (the day the Gulf War started), all three members of the band have been in previous bands such as Pondo Sinatra and The Dutch Crumbs.

Kevin Murnen (GDF's guitarist and contributing vocalist) and Tommy were both in Pondo Sinatra, while Eric was in The Dutch Crumbs. The trio became friends when their bands played together, and when the two bands broke-up, the three decided to form Gone Daddy Finch.

When asked about the selection of Gone Daddy Finch as the band's name, however, I found that I had sumbled across a little known about GDF secret.

"It's an acronym. Every letter stands for something," Klinger said, although he refused to comment on exactly what the letters stand for, claiming it's a super-secret that the fans will have to figure out for themselves.

Along with their mysterious "Figure out what the acronym stands for" game, the band is also well-known for "The Gone Daddy Finch drinking game".

With a twinkle in his eyes, Klinger carefully explained the rules of the game.

"What you do is gather around with all of your friends in the bar. Then, when anybody has to leave for any reason, even if they are just going to the bathroom, they have to say, 'Watch my little buddy' or their beer is open game to anyone else. It's more fun because the point of the game is TO drink as opposed to NOT drink," he said giddily.

Unfortunately for the BG community, as well as many of the local BG fans, however, to go see GDF perform, one must take the whopping 15 minute road trip up to Toledo.

"There's no bars to play in BG. No one will have us because we smell," Klinger revealed, somewhat ashamed.

"It's because we do what we want," Grybowski said. "The smell is just part of the package."

But what is this "smell" to which they are referring?

"Live rock," Klinger said bluntly.

But what of the mysterious Murnen? Who are his inspirations and mentors when it comes to his role in GDF? Who is it that motivates him to pick up his guitar and play as few ever guitarists have ever played before?

"Gary Spivey," Murnen said with no other explanation.

Gone Daddy Finch currently has a number of singles released, as well as a five song EP titled "Santa's Own God Jacket" which is available at Madhatter Music Co. here in BG.

Grybowski was also pleased to announce that "[the band] has a boat-load of new songs recorded," although they are not necessarily in the exact same vein as GDF's previous releases. "I'd like to think we got a little better. [The new songs] are a little more rockin'. We've also got better at recording."

Friends are the most important thing in the world.

It all started with an idea in the spring of 1983 when a group of music industry professionals decided to build some kind of vehicle that would honor rock and roll artists and that which inspired them. Although the art of rock and roll was 30 years old then, a form of knowledgeable recognition still lacked. And everyone knows the older art gets, you just have to put it in a museum.

Now, more than 12 years, 650,000 signatures, 110,000 calls to USA Today, and $92 million later, the same industry professionals who tabled the idea have made the state that was first in light, first in flight, and home to the first man on the moon the first in rock and roll, as the doors to the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum opened last weekend in Cleveland.

Although some of you might have had the opportunity to visit the Hall of Fame last weekend in its opening celebration, for those of you who weren't, WR was there to cover the action.

This week, follow us through a complete tour of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum as we give you the inside scoop on the many attractions and exhibits. Unfortunately, the museum would not allow us to take any photos, so you'll either have to imagine what the place is like or go visit it yourself. The choice is up to you.

Wow! Look at that!

When you first look at the 150,000 square foot radiant glass and white pyramid structure located on the shores of Lake Erie, you'll probably find yourself asking what the structure symbolizes about the rock and roll movement. At first, I couldn't figure it out either, but by the time I had browsed through the museum's seven stories, I had come to the conclusion that the structure clearly symbolizes the freedom and energy inspired by rock and roll and captures the essence that the music has on American cultural and social history.

This is a museum that is different from any other that I have been to, one where you can experience rock and roll's early roots through the music of today. What makes the museum even more special, though, is its interactive nature, as it offers visitors the opportunity to watch 25 original films in five theaters and listen to more than 500 tunes in the museum's listening booths and live broadcast studio. Visitors also have the chance to see more than 55 exhibitions and thousands of rock and roll items from all generations.

When you first walk through the museum doors, you'll be amazed by the museum's dimensions. If you look up, you'll see a few old cars hanging from the rafters. But don't be alarmed - the cars aren't real, but they still represent some of the important contributions rock and roll has given to our lifestyles. Also on the floor is the

You'll find the majority of the museum's exhibits on the ground floor of the museum. It's a relatively dimly lit floor, highlighted by neon and fluorescent blue and violet lights on the floor and
